

RxEOB® and Scripius® to Launch RxWallet® this Fall, Improving the Patient Experience.

Innovative digital tool allows Scripius members to manage prescriptions digitally and locate low-cost pharmacy options.

RICHMOND, VA — RxEOB and Scripius announced today that Scripius will become the nation's first Pharmacy Benefits Manager (PBM) service to provide its members access to RxWallet, enhancing prescription medication management. Developed by RxEOB, an innovator in prescription technology, RxWallet introduces a new digital tool allowing healthcare providers to send e-prescription information directly to patients' smartphones and enhancing the traditional pharmacy experience.

RxWallet will offer patients comprehensive information and insights, including available discounts and insurance coverage. Equipped with this information, patients can easily locate the most cost-effective pharmacy and seamlessly direct their prescriptions through their phone to the patient's preferred pharmacy.

"Whether it's delivering a prescription to a less-expensive pharmacy or simply using a coupon with a tap on their phone, our members will benefit from an empowering digital experience," said H. Eric Cannon, Scripius Chief Pharmacy Officer/General Manager. "We're excited to provide easy-to-use tech like RxWallet to our members to support their healthcare needs."

RxWallet integrates with FDB Vela™, a cloud-native electronic prescribing network, to facilitate seamless communication of vital medication prescription data between pharmacies, prescribers, and payers. Patients using FDB Vela participating prescribers will enjoy an enhanced RxWallet experience, ensuring comprehensive prescription management.

"Scripius and RxEOB believe in equipping individuals with the necessary information to make informed decisions regarding the price and delivery of their medications," said Robert Oscar, CEO and Founder of RxEOB.

The RxWallet app will be available for Scripius users to download and use via the Apple App Store and Google Play Store beginning September 1, 2024.
